

Daytrip out of London

By Chloe De Landgraft

Took a day trip with my parents to visit the English countryside and see some famous landmarks.

We booked an Evans and Evans tours on the day of departure, which left at 9am and returned at 8pm.

First went to Windsor Castle, where I think everyone agreed you could spend all day. They give you a headset with audio so that you can go to the places that you're interested in and find out interesting information. Just meant we were free to wander at our own pace. My favourite parts were the massive dining halls with painted ceilings and gold trimmings - made my jaw drop.

We then travelled 2 hours to Bath where we had a similar audio guide to take us around the ancient Roman Baths. There were rooms that had glass floors to show where they are still digging and discovering more ancient remains. Bath is a fascinating place that is well worth seeing.

Last stop before London was Stonehenge. An interesting place, but an hour is all you need as not a lot else to look at or do here.